Newberry Library Cartographic Catalog (2015)

1 ms. atlas (261 p., bound) : hand col. maps ; 17 x 28 cm.

Title supplied by cataloger.

Title: Track book

Spine title: Track book

 Unsigned manuscript compiled (in New Orleans?) by F. J. Rothas.

Covers 206 miles of the New Orleans, Jackson, and Great Northern Railroad, from New Orleans, Louisiana, to Canton, Mississippi, in fine detail, including every cut, embankment, bayou, bridge, and some flora and fauna. Later became part of the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

Scale [1:4,800].

Summary coordinates (all pages as one bounded region): (W 90°04'--W 90°02'/N 47°07'--N 29°57').

Inscriptions on front endleaf: "This book was drawn by a German draughtsman named Rhotas under direction of P.S. Williams and others who were Supts. at the time it was made and about the the year 1861 and before. [Signed] J.J. Conway, Ex. Roadmaster, New Orleans, March 6 / 1900." -- "Bull[itté]?", Supt. [?] 24 / 03" -- "T.E. Hill, 1935."

A local historian from McComb, Mississippi found the gravestone of Fred J. Rothas (1836-1898) and noted that since the atlas shows "McComb City" (on map 138), it cannot predate 1872 -- Clipping in Info. file.

Laid in: Description typed on onionskin (4 leaves) of the atlas and its provenance and historical details of the railroad, including station stops.

Pen-and-ink and watercolor (blue, green, brown, grey, red). Drawn in ledger book comprised of graph paper pages consecutively handstamped 1-398; p. 262-398 blank.

Forms part of the Illinois Central Railroad Company Archives at the Newberry Library.

Selected openings also cataloged separately.

Contents: The history of the city -- Servicing the city -- Living in the city -- Imagining the city. "Mapping New York is a richly illustrated documentation of the history of the city by means of the medium of cartography. Tracing the development of New York—from its inception as a Dutch colonial trade post, through periods of huge urban expansion, to the city’s current position as a global cultural leader—the book reveals the myriad uses of mapping and its potential as a document both historical and forward-looking, cultural and personal. Featuring over 150 images of the city and its Five Boroughs, Mapping New York is an enthralling and fascinating observation of an inimitable metropolis."—Back cover.

Fifty-four postcards including many duplicates, of views of the Newberry Library in Chicago, some without message and most written before 1915. Cards were written by both Chicago residents and visitors. Most were published by Chicago publishers, but also by firms in New York, Milwaukee, and San Francisco, and many were printed in Germany, sometimes with embellishment or extra coloring added. No messages refer to actually visiting the library, and as one correspondent says, "...still collecting souvenir postals," and another writes: "This is the library I have mentioned several times. It is just two blocks from my boarding house." There are the usual abbreviated postcard greetings: "Great place," "Some town," "A kiss from Alma," "I miss you very much," as well as the amusing 1906: "We arrived safe in Chicago...nothing unusual has happened found we had an extra satchel with nothing in it...."
Chicago's Newberry Library, open to the public without charge, is an independent research library dedicated to the advance of knowledge, especially in the humanities. The Library was founded as a public library by a bequest of Walter Loomis Newberry, a businessman, prominent citizen, founder of the Young Men's Library Association, active book collector, and president of the Chicago Historical Society before his death in 1868. After three temporary locations, in 1893 the Library moved into architect Henry Ives...
