Text of two letters, dated Feb. 1806 and April 1807 respectively, written by Angelo Pezzana, curator at the Biblioteca di Parma, to Niccolò da Rio, [editor?] of the Giornale della letteraturu Italiana, refuting assertions by Padre Domenico Maria Pellegrini, librarian of the Zeniana Collection [?], which appeared in vols. 10 and 12 of the Giornale, that--after the 'Tavola Peutingeriana'--the oldest geographical text was the planisphere of Father Mauro Camaldolese of 1459. Pezzana proves that the 'mappamundi' by Domenico and Francisco Pizigani of 1367, held in Parma, predates Camaldolese's work.
Includes bibliographical footnotes.
Modern marbled paper boards and buff endpapers; ms. spine title, 'Pezzana. L’antichità del mappamondo de’ Pizigano. 1807.'
In Italian.

Biographical and historical notes: In 1856, William H. Rand established a printing office above Keen and Lee’s Bookstore at 148 Lake Street in Chicago, Illinois. In 1858, he hired Andrew McNally and shortly after, they became partners and formed Rand McNally and Company. Rand McNally has since become a prolific publisher operating in a variety of areas. They established themselves as a household name in the United States and became known around the world for their cartographic products, producing not only the maps, globes, and atlases which have become their trademark, but also a variety of trade books (in particular juvenile books), educational texts and materials, financial publications, periodicals, and a wide range of miscellaneous job printing work, including many railroad tickets and coupons. Among the firm’s most popular publications were the Western Railway Guide, the Business Atlas, innumerable pocket and road maps, the Globe Library series of books, the Handy Guide series, textbooks, Goode’s Atlas, Kon-Tiki by Thor Heyerdahl, the New International Atlas, the juvenile Elf Books series, and several Marguerite Henry books, including Misty of Chincoteague. During their period of growth and expansion in the twentieth century, Rand McNally acquired a few smaller printing companies, including the W.B. Conkey Co. in 1949, a Canadian publisher (which became Rolph McNally), and a ticket and coupon printing company in Chicago. The McNally family was the majority owner of the company for nearly 100 years, from 1899 until 1997, at which time the family decided to divest its majority stake. Since then the company has been owned by two or three different entities, most recently by Patriarch Partners. Forms part of the John M. Wing Collection at the Newberry Library.

Catalog of an exhibition of Chinese art, maps, manuscripts, clothing, bronzes, porcelain, ceramics, and navigational instruments dating from the 14th-20th centuries, relating to the Jesuit Father Matteo Ricci, mounted at the Museum für Ostasiatische Kunst in Berlin, Germany, between June 9 and Aug. 27, 2005. Ricci was assigned to the Jesuit mission in China, where he lived and worked in Nanking and Peking for 27 years between 1583 and his death in 1610. He translated Christopher Clavius' works on geometry and trigonometry into Chinese, and in 1584 and 1600 published the first maps of China ever available to the West. He introduced trigonometric and astronomical instruments to the Chinese, and wrote books on the astrolabe, the sphere, measures and isoperimetrics. But especially important was his Chinese version of the first six books of Euclid's Elements, entitled A first textbook of geometry, written in collaboration with one of his pupils.

1 ms. map ; 148 x 113 mm. on sheet 194 x 157 mm.

Map of a small section of central San Antonio, Texas identifying locations of historical events. Includes key to a church, the courthouse, and deceased governor Juan Martin Veramendi's house. Benjamin Rush Milam was killed at the Veramendi house December 7, 1835 leading an attack against the Mexican army during the Battle of San Antonio. The Council House Fight occurred at the courthouse between village residents and Comanche Indians on March 19, 1840. Area shown on the map is roughly equivalent to the area surrounding the intersection of Soledad and Veramendi streets (in 1995). The map follows William Bollaert's October 4, 1843 journal entry describing Colonel William G. Cooke's memories of the battle and Milam.
