Undated hemispheric world map signed on verso in Greek by Hadrianus Negusantius, and tipped into: Mela, Pomponius. Cosmographia, sive De situ orbis. [Venice: Christophorus de Pensis, after 1493?] 38 leaves ; 21 cm. [Inc. *5259] Hain

Accompanied by 3 leaves of manuscript text sewn with the map into the same gathering, all tipped into the binding.
Manuscript text includes an index of place names keyed to numbers on the map.
Possibly derived from ca. 1490 manuscript maps by Henricus Martellus or Francesco Rosselli's printed map of 1493; cf. Shirley, Mapping of the world, p. xxii-xxiii and p.17, no. 18.
"The map belongs by content and design, to the last decade of the 15th century, [but] in view of the style of drawing and decoration [it] might well have been copied during the 16th century from a considerably earlier prototype exemplifying the Martellus model for the old world."--R.A. Skelton, in his detailed description and notes on the map (3 typewritten pages) in the Special Collections Information File.

1 map ; hand col. ; 42 x 56 cm. + introduction ([11] p. ; 35 x 26 cm.)

Series: Speculum Orbis Press. New World Series. 3.

The facsimile is of the map original published Strasbourg 1513; printed, signed, and dated by Bruce Beck, and numbered "[printer's]p[roof] VII/XV."

Colophon: Typus orbis universalis is the third New World facsimile. It has been carefully produced on a specially watermarked paper made by Kathryn Clark at Twinrocker Handmade Papers and was hand printed from a magnesium engraving using a Vandercook press on dampened paper. It is generally believed that in the Strasbourg Edition of 1513, as originally issued, there were no colored maps; but today, many of those still extant have been subsequently colored.

A preliminary Typus orbis of 1507, hand colored, exists as a unique copy at the John Carter Brown Library. Its colors were duplicated by artist

Susan Doyle in producing a number of hand colored versions which form a part of this SOP edition. The monograph is set in monotype Centaur and Arrighi and was printed on Rives text. The border used on the title page was adapted from the one used in Waldseemüller’s second edition of 1520. The initial letter is based on one used by Nicolas Jenson in 1470. Both the map and the monograph have been produced in editions of 175 numbered and 15 publisher proofs and both have been printed by Bruce Beck at the Turtle Press in Evanston. This is number [publisher] [roof] VII.

Also, a second facsimile, uncolored, signed by Bruce Beck "[publisher] [roof] X.XV."

Esso war map[s]. New York : General Drafting Co., inc., 1942-1945.

Authors: General Drafting Company -- Esso Standard Oil Company -- General Drafting Collection (Newberry Library).

With the advent of World War II and the associated restrictions on automobile travel, all the oil companies stopped publishing road maps. The Esso Standard Oil Company, under the name Esso Marketers, managed to satisfy some of the public's desire for their 'free' maps by issuing a series of 'War maps' showing the various theaters. These maps were strictly geographical and did not depict battles or troop locations. Thus, they remained useful for the duration of the war and were reprinted, with no apparent changes, some as many as four times. This group includes examples of all states of the maps present in the General Drafting Collection. Individual maps and states of maps are also cataloged separately.

Forms part of the General Drafting Collection (Newberry Library).

The map takes the form of a stapled booklet consisting of four leaves. Projections at the bottom act as a stand, and when the leaves are spread out, it gives the appearance of a globe. The maps are surrounded by flags; sections of the flags and countries on the map are numbered, so this was clearly intended as a coloring book. Based on the flags of Israel and 'Irak,' the piece was produced between 1948 and 1958. Gift of Todd J. Tubutis, 2006.

Documents are 'probanzas,' establishing the nobility status of members of the Xiu family. The record of the proceedings to confirm the nobility of Juan, María, and Petrona Xiu, including testimony of witnesses and the 'auto de permisión,' is dated May 13, 1641 in Tekax. The bulk of the documents are petitions by members of the Xiu family who, on the basis of their nobility status, seek hereditary rights, privileges, and exemptions. Petitions are filed by members of successive generations, such as Alonso Xiu, his widow Catalina Cimé, their children Juan, María, and Petrona, and their grandsons Bonifacio Uc and Roque Xiu. Certifications of baptism often accompany these petitions for privileges. The Maní land treaty of 1557 is a land survey of the province of Maní. Also included are two pictorial documents: one is this pictorial map of the Tutul Xiu province of Maní from 1577, showing the surrounding towns and villages—their names inscribed within a circle topped by a cross—linked by roads to larger municipalities designated by small drawings of churches. The other is a 17th-century Xiu family tree of nine generations, shown arising from the loins of a Maya Indian, Hun-Uitzil-Chac, accompanied by his wife. In Maya and Spanish.

Photographic reproduction from the collection of William E. Gates. Also known as the Ticul Manuscript and the Crónica de Otxkutzcab. Cf. Tozzer, p. 203 and Glass, p. 237.

Six documents on stamped paper. Some loss of text due to fading and damage. See additional descriptions by John B. Glass and Donald Robertson of the map of Maní province and the Xiu genealogical tree in Handbook of Middle American Indians, v. 14, p. 158 (no. 192) and p. 237 (no. 401). Description by John B. Newberry Library Cartographic Catalog (2015) : Index

In one alphabet, this index traces subjects, authors, and titles assigned to numbered descriptions in this catalog. Following are examples of index headings:

- Parma (Italy : Province) - Maps - 1740
  - 63381
  - Parnell, Geoffrey
  - Pars altera seu borealis circuli Rhenani...

Subjects headings appear in boldface, and many are comprised of a place name, a hyphen, the subheading “Maps”, another hyphen, and the date of situation. Author names appear in plain font and in inverted order: Lastname, Firstname. Titles appear in italics.

Immediately following all three of these types of headings are catalog record numbers. In the example above, the Parma map dated 1740 is described in catalog record number 63381.

Request Items by Call Numbers, Not Record Numbers: Readers wishing to see an item, request a reproduction of it, or cite it correctly in writing, should do so by its call number, which appears in bold type as the last line of each catalog description. To see or request a copy of the Parma map indexed above and described below, refer to its complete call number, in this case Sack map4F G6713.E5:3P3 1740 N6 (PrCt).

Readers are encouraged to use printed catalog descriptions to access main online catalog records for the same items, by using Boolean searches combining the acronym NLCC with keywords found in this catalog. Readers are also encouraged to ask for reference assistance from Newberry staff.
