Go Straight to the Source!

At the Newberry, an independent research library, readers do not borrow books to take home, but consult rare books, manuscripts, and other materials here. We welcome researchers who are at least 14 years old or in the ninth grade. Visit <https://requests.newberry.org> to create a reader account and start exploring our collection. When you arrive at the Newberry for research, a free reader card will be issued to you in the Welcome Center on the first floor. Find further information about our collection and public programs at www.newberry.org. Questions? Contact the reference desk at (312) 255-3506 or reference@newberry.org.

Archival Collections

Jack Conroy Papers. Works, correspondence and papers of American novelist, folklorist, and editor. His 1933 novel, The Disinherited, is considered a classic in proletarian literature and depicted in gritty detail the realities of the Great Depression. Conroy helped launch writers like Richard Wright, Erskine Caldwell, and Nelson Algren. In 1938 Conroy came to Chicago, at Algren's suggestion, to work on the Illinois Writer's Project. Along with recording folktales and industrial folklore, Conroy was assigned to the black history portion of the IWP, and collaborated with Arna Bontemps, producing the pioneering black studies works They Seek A City (1945) and Anyplace But Here (1965). Conroy and Bontemps also collaborated on several successful juvenile books based on folktales, including The Fast Sooner Hound (1942) and Slappy Hooper, The Wonderful Sign Painter (1946).

Pullman Company Records. The Pullman Company (originally Pullman's Palace Car Company) revolutionized rail travel and dramatically increased employment opportunities for African Americans who served as porters and maids on its cars. The records at the Newberry include voluminous individual employee records and labor relations documents, as well as documentation on the town of Pullman, now a historic district on Chicago's south side. This is a rich source for African American family and local history. Online inventory:

Mark J. Satter Papers. The papers of this Chicago-born lawyer and civil rights activist include rich materials on his life-long battle against the discriminatory real estate practices of redlining and contract selling. In 1944 Satter began to purchase properties in Chicago's West Side where he lived with his wife and growing family, to provide additional income. He became a landlord during the peak of the second wave of the Great Migration of African Americans from the rural South to the cities of the North and West. Chicago became a site of major demographic change and Satter rented properties to black residents based on his political ideals that black and white people should live in the same communities. Periodicals and Online Resources

Chicago Defender. One of the major African-American newspapers in the country, the Defender published articles of both national and local interest, including many on segregation, education, real estate, and other issues related to black life in Chicago. The Newberry has online access (in the library only) to the historical database of the Defender from 1909-1975, and also has online access to the Chicago Tribune from 1849-1991.
